

To whom it may concern,

Häme University of Applied Sciences (HAMK) is happy to recommend the Finnish education company Eduration for its work in higher education. They have done a valuable job in promoting Finnish education and offering effective student recruitment services to international students. With connections in all the continents, Eduration wants to be part of the process of building a more international Finland, increase economic growth and spread awareness of Finland.

As the world is entering a new era of global connectivity, it is more important than ever for Finland to be part of the international community. Finland has opened its doors to a whole new era of education export. Eduration is helping the most deserving and eager to learn individuals so they can experience the quality education Finland has to offer. Eduration works as a consortium of various Finnish Higher Education Institutions.

At HAMK we believe that education is an investment for the future and it is important for Finland to have more diverse student body. We encourage universities, high schools and other organizations around the world operating in the field of student mobility to join the cause and promote Finland as a study destination. We want to provide all students with an easier access to top-notch education and the valuable experiences that studying abroad will bring.

HAMK has always been a force that constantly promotes student mobility, innovates new programs and strategies. With that being said, we are happy to work closely together with Eduration to serve the youth and societies on global scale.

Yours sincerely,
